DETAILED ACTION

Drawings

1. Figures 7 and 8 should be designated by a legend such as --Prior Art-- because only that which is old is illustrated. See MPEP § 608.02(g). Corrected drawing sheets are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. The replacement sheet(s) should be labeled "Replacement Sheet" in the page header (as per 37 CFR 1.84(c)) so as not to obstruct any portion of the drawing figures. If the changes are not accepted by the examiner, the applicant will be notified and informed of any required corrective action in the next Office action. The objection to the drawings will not be held in abeyance.

Specification

2. Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

In the present application, the abstract contains the term "means."

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Art Unit: 2634

4. Claims 1-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

A broad range or limitation together with a narrow range or limitation that falls within the broad range or limitation (in the same claim) is considered indefinite, since the resulting claim does not clearly set forth the metes and bounds of the patent protection desired. Note the explanation given by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences in Ex parte Wu, 10 USPQ2d 2031, 2033 (Bd. Pat. App. & Inter. 1989), as to where broad language is followed by "such as" and then narrow language. The Board stated that this can render a claim indefinite by raising a question or doubt as to whether the feature introduced by such language is (a) merely exemplary of the remainder of the claim, and therefore not required, or (b) a required feature of the claims. Note also, for example, the decisions of Ex parte Steigewald, 131 USPQ 74 (Bd. App. 1961); Ex parte Hall, 83 USPQ 38 (Bd. App. 1948); and Ex parte Hasche, 86 USPQ 481 (Bd. App. 1949). In the present instance, by the use of "and/or" claims 1,6,10 and 14 (and the remaining claims by dependency) all recite a broader recitation that includes only one of "modulating" and "transmitting" as well as a narrower recitation drawn to the combination of "modulating" and "transmitting."

For the purposes of examination, the claims are interpreted in accordance with the broad recitation that requires only one of the substeps/means, i.e., that of "modulating."

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

5. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

Art Unit: 2634

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

6. Claims 1,6,10, 12, 14 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Tillman et al (US 6,496,980).

Consider claims 1, 10 and 12. Referring to Fig.2, Tillman discloses a layered encoding means (36) that structures a transmission signal in a plurality of layers (enhancement layer 54 and base layer 52) and outputs a plurality of compressed bit streams by encoding the layers (by using H.263, an industry compression standard), and a modulating means that modulates the compressed data streams by a modulating method determined for each layer (see col. 3, lines 62-66 describing the use of a modem for transmission). In addition see col. 4, line 65 – col. 5, line 7.

Now consider claims 6 and 14. Regarding claim 6 reciting a signal decoding receiving apparatus, Fig.2, shows a receiving means (44) that receives a transmission signal that are layered in a hierarchy and modulated by an encoder, as explained above, a demodulating means for demodulating the compressed bit streams on the basis of a prescribed demodulating criteria (see col. 3, lines 62-66 describing the use of a modem for transmission, which requires a demodulator at a receiver side), and a layered decoding means for reconstructing the transmission signal. See col.10, lines 64-66.

Regarding claim 18, Tillman teach a computer-readable medium for implementing the encoding and decoding means at col. 11, lines 25-39.

Allowable Subject Matter

Art Unit: 2634

7. Claims 2-5, 7-9, 11,13, 15-17 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

8. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Chen et al (US 6,141,450) and Puri et al (US 6,148,026) teach a layered encoder.
